SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Mr. A. W. Randolph Injured.

While driving home to Glendale from his Burbank ranch Tuesday afternoon about 5:30, Mr. A. W. Randolph of Ninth and Glendale avenue, was run into and thrown out of his buggy and rolled under an automobile driven by Mr. McClure of the Burbank winery. Mr. Randolph had noticed that McClure was manipulating his machine recklessly, indicating that he was either drunk or otherwise incompetent and when he saw that he was coming up behind him tried to avoid a collision but without success. The auto struck the front wheel of the buggy, ran into the horse, threw Mr. Randolph out and ran over him. The victim suffered no broken bones, but is injured internally although it is hoped not seriously. It has become a serious matter for any one to travel on the San Fernando road unless in an automobile, as it seems to have become a favorite speedway. The greatest danger is usually from the effort apparently made by chauffeurs to pass other vehicles just as near as possible and without giving any warning, the result being that if the vehicle ahead chances to turn a little at the critical moment there is a collision. In such cases as that related above reckless drivers should be arrested and made to pay the full penalty that the law imposes.

A SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY.

At the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Palmer, 116 W. Sixth street, a delightful dinner was given in honor of the birthday of Mr. O. S. Palmer and Mr. W. J. Grafious of Los Angeles. Covers were laid for thirty-five. The table was spread on the spacious veranda which was brilliantly illumined with Japanese lanterns. After the delicious repast was enjoyed by all many witty toasts were responded to by the guests of honor. Games, music and conversation filled the remainder of the evening until a late hour the guests departed voting it an evening long to be remembered by all present.

Miss Frances Eyre and Miss Wells Honored

A most delightful affair was the card party given by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Pack at the Priory Wednesday evening of last week complimentary to Miss Frances Eyre and Mr. Reginald Whitaker, whose engagement has recently been announced, and to Miss Anita Wells, who leave on a European tour in a few days. The house was charmingly decorated for the occasion and progressive 500 was played, handsome prizes being won by Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Gaston Ganahl, after which dainty and elaborate refreshments were served and the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. Hunt gave a pleasant foretaste of an interesting social event to the place in the near future. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, Dr. and Mrs. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, Misses Anita Wells, Ganahl, Eyre, Whitaker, Anderson and Frank, Messrs. Prosser and Walter Penn, Ganahl, Wallace, Whitaker, Frank and Wells.

ST. MARK'S CHOIR NOTES.

Wednesday evening, at the Guild hall, the men of the choir acted as hosts, having as their guests the choir ladies. The evening was spent with music, games, etc. Refreshments were served at a late hour. Everyone enjoyed themselves immensely, although regrets were expresesd at the absence of Prof. Robinson, which was due to a serious illness from which he has now recovered well enough to be up and around.

Members of the choir attended the choral e'ensong at St. John's church, Los Angeles, last Sunday evening and enjoyed the service very much.

GLENDALE EAGLE ROCK RAILROAD EXTENSION.

Contractor Geo. B. Mock has a force of men and teams at work grading the roadbed for the extension of this line to Verdugo Park, which point Mr. Goode informs us will probably be reached by July 4th, as per program. The grading now being done is just north of the Glendale city limits on the west side of the Salt Lake company's track. There is no very serious work required in grading and track laying will probably begin the first of the week.

Thimble Party

Mrs. J. L. Whitaker and Miss Ina Whitaker entertained last Thursday afternoon of last week with a thimble party in honor of Miss Frances Eyre, whose marriage to Mr. Reginald Writaker is soon to take place, in compliment also to Miss Anita Wells of Canyon Crest, who leaves in a few days for a trip to Europe. Each lady brought some pretty piece of needlework which were collected and showered on the fair bride-to-be at the end of the afternoon. Miss Wells being also the recipient of a miniature suit case filled up as a work box by her numerous friends. Tea, sandwiches and cake were served on the lawn and porches. Those present were Mesdames Sherer, Wells, Frank, Dan Campbell, Arthur Campbell, Kirby, Hunt, Palmer, Wm. Mitchell, Park and Anderson, and the Misses Frank, Penn, Wells and Eyre.

SAD ACCIDENT.

An inquest was held at Pulliam's Undertaking parlors Wednesday morning on the body of a one year old child, the daughter of Natalie Rosso of West Glendale. The little one was playing on the S. P. railroad track on Tuesday morning when the 7:20 train bound north passed. The engineer saw her when less than a hundred feet distant and was unable to stop the train in time to avoid running over the little one. A verdict in accordance with the above facts was rendered and the body interred at Forest Lawn.

Miss Annie L. McIntyre entertained with a Five Hundred party Saturday evening at her home on Isabel street. The invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. F. Martin of Topeka, Kas.; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. McIntyre, Mrs. Matthes, Mrs. Campbell and Miss Lorraine Mitchell of Glendale; Miss Lacey of Salinas; Miss Eula Richardson, Miss Scott of Tropico, Mr. Wynne, Mr. Tyler of Los Angeles; Mr. J. P. Scott, Capt. McCloud of Tropico, Messrs. Lynch, Owen and Shaver of Glendale. Mrs. Pulliam and Mr. Lynch carried off the honors of the evening, while the consolation prize fell to Miss Richardson.

CITY TRUSTEES

The Usual Routine—Street Superintendent Sinclair to Hold His Place—Building Inspector's Salary Fixed

It was eight o'clock before all the trustees were present, called to order and proceeded to put the routine business through the mill, in which was included a long list of demands on the treasury. Mr. Coker for the auditing committee expressed an opinion to the effect that the charge for placing lights along the line of the Glendale-Eagle Rock railroad on Third street should not be at the expense of the city, and asked the opinion of the city attorney. Mr. Baker, in reply, stated that the question was somewhat involved, but that the lights had been ordered placed there, as the city undoubtedly was largely, if not altogether responsible for the public safety along that street; and furthermore that the city trustees and the street superintendent having knowledge of the dangerous condition of the street, were also individually liable if they took no steps to protect the traveling public.

Reports were received from various city officials. A communication was received from Acting Treasurer Doyle in regard to salary. The matter was taken up later in the evening and it was decided that Mr. Doyle continues in office under his previous election and consequently is entitled to his former salary.

The matter of the opening of East Sixth street was brought up. It was stated that all summonses had been served and the matter would now be pushed to an issue by securing at once the appointment of referee, etc.

A resolution of thanks was voted and ordered placed upon the minutes, in appreciation of the suggestion of Mr. E. U. Emery that Glendale be called the "Jewel City."

A resolution was read approving the work of Street Superintendent Sinclair in times past and recommending that he be continued in office at a salary of $125 per month. Mr. Watson moved the adoption of the motion and was seconded by Mr. Anderson. In discussing the question Mr. Coker quoted a [illegible] the purport of said interview and to other reasons, would oppose the resolution. He did not favor the increase of $25 per month; did not know that the position was worth it. Mr. Sinclair replied to Mr. Coker, saying that he was partly right and partly wrong in his report of said conversation, and gave his version of it. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Anderson spoke in favor of the resolution complimenting Mr. Sinclair on his good work. When it came to a vote there were four votes in favor of the resolution.

The salary of the building inspector was fixed at $90 per month when the fees of the office exceed that amount, or the receipts of the office if less than that sum. The board is to meet as a committee of the whole Saturday evening and it is expected that at next Monday's session the question of the affiairs at issue between the Pacific Electric and the city will be taken up.

ANOTHER PUBLIC FOUNTAIN.

As the W. C. T. U. is soon to erect a public drinking fountain at Fourth and Geindale avenue, the Glendale and Vicinity Improvement Association has taken hold of the matter of placing one at Fourth street and Brand boulevard and the following committee has been appointed to push the good work along: J. W. Usilton, Mrs. Eudemiller, Mrs. Kinney, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Usilton, Messrs. W. A. Anderson, Pulliam, Bright, Church, Kirker, Miller, Howe and Kirk. Petitions for subscriptions will be circulated, the petitions to be accompanied by a sketch of the fountain it is proposed to erect.

NEW ARRIVAL.

A young lady who failed to register upon arrival and who will pardon the NEWS for not giving her mention sooner, came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Williams on Cedar street on April 24th, and up to the time we go to press continues to make herself interesting and to acquire avoirdupois and the other things considered desirable in one of her age. She has been named Jean Gotier Williams. Mother and child are doing well.

GLENDALE, CAL., JUNE 10, 1910

The indications in Los Angeles are that the referendum is going to be overworked.

The Highway Commission has let the contract for building the road from the Los Angeles City limits to Burbank (47,353 feet), to Peter Walker for $66,992.16.

The San Pedro News is responsible for the assertion that since consolidation with Los Angeles the expense of that town has increased four hundred per cent—and it's a safe wager that they have nothing to show for it.

The Los Angeles Times, one of the most consistent of the opponents of municipal ownership as a general proposition, comes out squarely in favor of the municipality owning and controlling the telephone. In saying that two telephone companies in one city constitute a nuisance, the Times wins our most hearty concurrence.

The U. S. Bureau of Statistics issues a statement in which the fact is shown that since August 5th, 1909, when the present tariff law went into effect, there has been an increase of 33 per cent in manufactured materials, 26 per cent in finished manufactures and 3 per cent in food stuffs. The gain is principally in rubber, hides and skins, raw wool and silk.

Mr. Charles F. Curry's political bureau sends us a statement showing that during his incumbency of the office of Secretary of State (1899 to date), the receipts increased from $27,518.30 to $900,400.75, which is surely growing some, but until we are informed to the contrary we shall doubt whether Mr. Curry is responsible for it.

B. O. Flower of Boston, founder of the Arena Magazine, is the president of a league formed to oppose the American Medical Association, particularly in the desire of the latter to have established a national health bureau. The league is composed of independent practitioners of the healing art who are outside the pale of the orthodox and their claim is that the establishment of the proposed bureau would result in a "doctors' trust," with the independents on the outside.

In view of the fact that property owners in this section have for years from time to time been in the habit of turning storm water from their own lands on to that of their neighbors, a recent decision by Judge James in the Superior Court of Los Angeles, is of interest. Up near Lordsburg, a man named Crawford turned aside a stream which went through the property of a neighbor named Lawrence, doing considerable damage. Lawrence brought suit against Crawford and won, getting a verdict for $1200 damages.

Judging from a recent article in the New York Sun, Mr. Julian Hawthorne, who at one time bid fair to follow worthily in the footsteps of his illustrious father, has descended to playing the part of a promoter of mining schemes of less than doubtful merits. During the past three years he has succeeded in floating several projects by means of particularly alluring prospectuses and the skillful use of the English language well designed to draw money out of the pockets of the trustful and transfer it to his own. He operates from New York and his field is the wide world, which he evidently considers to be "his oyster."

THE PASSING OF THE MUCK-RAKER.

We should be glad to believe that there is no basis in fact for the sensational stories of corruption in high places which the "muck rakers" continue to regale us with through the medium of the cheaper class of magazines and otherwise. But the recent disclosures in regard to Pittsburg and Chicago make this cheerful conclusion impossible. But that there is much exaggeration indulged in by sensational writers is undoubtedly true, and the impression conveyed to the mind of some readers that dishonesty in public place is the rule rather than the exception, is not supported by facts. When one takes into consideration the fact that it is in only a half dozen or less of all the cities in the Union that the existence of dishonesty on the part of public officials has been proved, it will be seen that betrayal of trust is not so common a thing after all. In California there has been only one city that has furnished the public with any interesting disclosures proving anything approaching a general debauchery of municipal servants. In Los Angeles, where an ambitious young lawyer, desirous of following in the footsteps of Francis Heney, started a crusade by a general denunciation of city officials, a long drawn-out and thorough investigation resulted in the forced resignation of the mayor of the city, but not in the conviction of a single offender. On the whole the "muck raker" has been of great service to the people, but there are signs becoming visible which indicate that his usefulness is rapidly drawing to a close. The people are tiring of his work and longing for a mental pabulum that has in it more of the spirit of faith and hope. It is not necessary that we should close our eyes to the fact that evil is being done in the world, but there is a more wholesome atmosphere for us to dwell in than that which surrounds the professional seeker after it. The daily papers can be relied upon to furnish us in ample sufficiency the day's record of wrong doing, but it would be better to devote more space to the record of noble actions and stories of honesty and self sacrifice, for in these are the spirit of health and hope and from them we get the needed reminder that "God lives and all is well in the world."

JUSTICE THERE AND HERE.

The Courier-Journal reprinted from an Eastern paper the other day a letter from an American farmer now resident in Canada, dwelling upon the advantages of life there. He said:

"The man that breaks the law is jailed. . . He can have 50 guns and $50,000, he can have any sort of blame pull you like—but he is just going to be jailed. . . Maybe he'll kill a Northwest policeman. Well, then he'll hang for a dead sure thing. . . All Canada knows it, and we Americans know it, and that's why this country is a good country to live in."

Certainly to the lover of law and order and the administration of justice, Canada is, according to the above account, "a good country to live in." It is safe to assume that Canada does not spend nearly as much money per capita to maintain peace and administer justice as does the United States. They do not spend as much time in talking about justice as we do here, they go about getting it. It is doubtful, too, whether they have so many organizations working for the establishment of their particular theory of government and their own special brand of reform, as flourish in our free air; and it is undoubtedly true that instead of trusting to the efficacy of new laws, they make the old ones do, and get results. The Courier-Journal, in commenting upon the words it quotes, says that in one year there have been as many as ten thousand homicides in the United States and that statistics show that the chances average about 100 to 1 against the conviction of criminals. It is not a pleasant contrast for the people of this country to ponder over, but the exercise may be a wholesome one. The fault is not so much in our laws as in our juries and the jury system is not growing rapidly in the estimation of those familiar with its workings, but is rather sinking into disrepute. By degrees the people are coming around to the idea that although theoretically the jury system is an ideal means of administering justice, yet in the final analysis it will be found that the trained judge will come nearer to a just verdict in nine cases out of ten than will twelve men, inexperienced in weighing testimony and warped more or less unconsciously by their impulses and prejudices.

TAFT AND THE RAILROADS

President Taft and the country at large is to be congratulated upon the agreement arrived at with the railroads by which the latter agree to withdraw all notices of increase in rates until the railroad bill now pending in Congress becomes a law. One of the provisions of that bill is that before any railroad increases its rates, a notice of the proposed increase shall be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission and shall not become effective until that body investigates and approves. Anticipating apparently, the passage of this bill, the railroads recently took action to increase freight rates very generally over their systems, as after rates were once raised they would not be subject to any investigation. To prevent this immediate increase the government brought suit in a Missouri federal court for an injunction restraining the roads from making it effective. The representatives of twenty-four railroad companies at a conference held with the president on Tuesday last, agreed as above, while the government agreed to withdraw injunction suits which are of course not now necessary, and the status quo will be in effect until the new law receives the president's signature. The importance of the agreement arrived at can scarcely be overestimated. When justice is on the side of the government so plainly that the people can understand it, there is no question of the outcome of any litigation on its part with the railroads; the people must win. But the cost of such litigation may well deter the government from entering into it. Railroads are an every-day necessity; they are not only the greatest factor in the development of the country, but one of our chief reliances in maintaining material prosperity. Anything affecting seriously the transportation companies is far reaching in its effect. It is not fair to assume that it was a threat merely when railroad officials made the statement that if they were restrained from increasing rates they would have to cut down expenses by discontinuing all new work of extension and improvement and possibly by a reduction of wages and a discharge of many employes. As business men they probably considered this necessary in self defense, and that they agree to submit to a postponement of any action of this kind should be considered as creditable to them as it is to the government in securing it. The people of the country may breathe freely once more, confident that the shadow of an impending disaster in the business world has been removed for some time to come.

NOT IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE PEOPLE TO RULE.

What Hiram Johnson has to say about the influence which the railroad company has had in California political affairs is unquestionably true in the main, and the fact is one long known and many times asserted. But when he says that it "has been impossible for the people to choose their own rulers," he makes a statement which is absolutely without foundation. If he really believes the assertion to be true, he is densely ignorant; if otherwise, he is worse than a demagogue. His further assertion that "now under the direct primary law the people have the power which they never possessed before of electing whom they will," is equally misleading. It will not be long before the people will find that the direct primary law is a delusion and a snare. The convention system had its faults doubtless, but it was in reality more representative than the present law. Under that system a party's candidate for governor would be selected by the majority at a convention consisting of seven or eight hundred delegates. Under the present law the selection is made by a dozen or so self-appointed delegates who confer together in private and then announce their choice. In this manner was Hiram Johnson selected. In the actual initiative of his selection the people had no voice whatever. It is true that after the candidate is thus selected, his name is submitted to the people for ratification, but so was the name of the convention's candidate. It is true that conventions were frequently dominated in California by the railroad forces, but it was not a rule without exception; that influence has not always been paramount. Indeed there never has been a time nor a campaign when it was "impossible" as Mr. Johnson asserts, for the people to have their own way in the matter. The railroad forces carried conventions and elections in times past, and will again do so, simply because the people shirked the performance of their political duties. In California and elsewhere in the United States the people have had in actual fact ever since the adoption of the Federal constitution, the right of self-government, and when, as it sometimes has happened, an organized minority dominated them, it has ever been the fault of the people themselves. There is a sense in which it is true that there is no such thing as "self-government," and it is very doubtful whether our twentieth century wisdom is capable of greatly improving upon the system devised by the fathers of the republic, even including the election of senators. Under the most direct system of governing that can be imagined the vast majority of the people must delegate their power to others, they cannot govern in their character of individual entities. The so-called "direct" method is direct in name only. It is not practicable for every voter to vote direct for the person he would choose to fill an official position; he must defer to some extent to the judgment of others, and the present primary election law does not pretend to possess this direct feature. The success of a republican form of government depends upon the active intelligent participation in public affairs of practically the whole body of electors, and nothing else will serve to convert our highest ideals of government into a reality.

THE SCHOOLS

AT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

During the past two weeks the several graduating classes of the Grammar schools with their teachers have visited the high school. They have inspected the building, seen the classes at work and grasped a general idea of the various courses given in the school. Mr. Moyse has talked to them of the plan of the work here and outlined courses for those who announced that they would be entrants next year. This plan of introducing the graduates seems to form a better connection between the grammar and high schools. A large entrance class is expected next fall.

The Class of 1912 enjoyed a hay ride last Friday night to Bee Rock. The boys of the class acted as hosts and the reports of the picnic prove without doubt that the class deserves the name of "Jolly Sophomores."

Miss Nora L. Warner, who formerly was a member of the Glendale High school faculty, has been engaged for next year in Latin and English. She went East in 1907 on a leave of absence and has been teaching and studying there since that time.

Miss Jane Hawk, a graduate of the University of California, has been elected to succeed Miss McLean. Miss Hawk has been teaching in Snell Seminary in Berkeley the past year and coaching the Girls' Basket ball team in Berkeley High school. She comes highly recommended as an instructress in gymnastics.

Miss Anna Woodberry has returned to school after an absence of several weeks on account of illness.

Final exams commence next Wednesday and commencement week begins the following Sunday with the baccalaureate sermon. The commencement exercises will be entirely by members of the class and will be more than usually indicative of the school work.

Charts have been prepared showing the average attendance and absences and will be on exhibition from this time on. The large percentage of absences is caused by the small per cent of the pupils. The seniors show up best. At the tennis finals played last Saturday at the Howard school, the boys won their part of the contest, but the girls were loosers, Alhambra taking the championship. Glendale was represented by Ray Morrow, Allen Davenport, Marie McDonald and Pearl Goode.

Improvement work on the grounds is progressing. The water has been put all over the grounds and forms a very complete system. In the rear of the building tall acacias have been planted to furnish shade, in front a few fine specimens of palms and deodaras have been set out while on the parkways of Louise and Mary streets camphor trees have been planted. The two tennis courts have been completed and are among the best in the state. It is probable that the use of these courts will be given to the public after five o'clock in the afternoons.

A musical open to patrons and friends of the school will be given this (Friday) afternoon at 215 in the auditorium; the following program will be rendered:

Music suitable to season.

Catherine Lennox
Vocal Solo, ... "In an Old Garden"

PATRONS' DAY—SIXTH STREET SCHOOL.

On last Thursday the Sixth street school observed Patrons' Day, which was held in the evening for the first time in Glendale. This innovation was due entirely to the desire of Miss Waite, the principal, to give the fathers the opportunity of attending this entertainment, which would have been impossible if held as usual in the day time. That the evening entertainment idea was a success was evidenced by the large number of gentlemen present. All of the rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers and foliage, and the exhibit of the year's work of each room artistically arranged in that room. On all sides were heard comments upon the unusual ability displayed in each grade, and the special teacher, Mrs. Anderson, who has charge of the music, drawing and painting, was the recipient of many congratulations upon the very creditable work displayed. In each room was a punch bowl presided over by daintily gowned mothers who had children in that grade. First and second grades: Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Snow, Mrs. Grosvenor; Third grade, Dr. Russell, Mrs. Hinckley, Mrs. McMullin, Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. McKee; Fourth and Fifth grades, Mrs. Price Brown, Mrs. Hester; Sixth grade, Mrs. Hunchberger, Mrs. Dominy; Seventh and Eighth grades, Mrs. Church, Mrs. Bachman.

Too much credit cannot be given Miss Waite and her teachers for the delightful evening; their unfailing patience and untiring enthusiasm, which made this possible, was certainly appreciated by the crowd present.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Anderson, follows:

Pinched Plums.

The mistress of the mathematical class was mathematizing for her mathematical pupils, while her mathematical pupils were inwardly mathematizing mathematics.

"Now, suppose," said the mistress, "I had a pound of plums"—

At which point it occurred to her how much better she could illustrate her example to her youthful charges if she really had a pound of plums. So—

"Mary," she said to a girl of eight, "here's sixpence. Go out and get me a pound of plums. And as I'm going to give them in the end to the girl who gets the sum right first be sure before you buy them you pinch one or two just to see that they are wholesome."

A few minutes and Mary had returned. With flushed face and triumphant eyes she approached the teacher's desk as one worthy of commendation and plumped down a bag of plums and the sixpence.

"There, mum!" she said. "I pinched one or two, as you told me, and when the man wasn't looking I pinched the blessed lot!"—London Answers.

Music Writing Made Easy.

Mlle. Salle was in the eighteenth century the most accomplished and fascinating balleteuse at the famous French Opera. In addition to her other qualifications, she played and sang with extraordinary artistic skill and depth of expression. She once confided to Rameau, the noter musician, that her ardent wish was to be able to compose and asked him to give her a few lessons in the art. "Nothing easier in the world," Rameau gallantly replied. He handed her a sheet of paper ruled for music and asked her to take her valuable breastpin and prick holes in the lines wherever she thought proper. After the lady had completed her task Rameau took the sheet of paper, turned each puncture into a note, determined its length, selected a suitable key, and the thing was done. This remarkable composition turned out a lively piece of dance music, which was afterward entitled "Les Sauvages Dans les Indes Galantes" and was popular in France for a great number of years.

Macaulay as a Child.

Thomas Babington Macaulay should perhaps have ranked with the universal geniuses, but it is true that his precocious gift was largely in the direction of literature. He read incessantly from the age of three. At seven he had composed a very fair compendium of universal history from the creation to 1500. [illegible] written a treatise destined to convert the natives of Malabar to Christianity. As a recreation from this weighty work he wrote in the same year a romance in the style of Scott in three cantos, entitled "The Battle of Chevlot." A little later came a long poem on the history of Olaf Magnus and a vast pile of blank verse entitled "Fingal—A Poem In Twelve Books." But he disliked mathematics and did not pass his examinations in that subject, thus standing out among all child prodigies. His memory was such that he literally never could forget anything and after twenty years could repeat bits of poetry read only once.

Her One Wish.

The wandering peddler stopped at the southern cabin and opened his pack.

"Mammy, let me show you some self raising umbrellas," he began.

"No use, man, no use," interrupted the old colored woman as she busied herself about the pot of clothes. "Cyant use nuffin lak dat."

"How about self raising window shades?"

"No good heah, kase deh ain't no windows wuth talkin' about."

"Self raising buckwheat?"

"No good to me—we eat cohn pone. But, mister!"

"Well, mammy?"

¶ This is your first and last chance to buy at these prices, for they will hold but a short time. The San Fernando Valley is an inland empire; the Richardson Tract is the gateway to it.
The ultimate worth of these lands is beyond calculation. Think of these prices and terms as compared to five years from now. Imagine the immense appreciation in value.
If you don't own a home now, and would like to, we will build for you, subject to restrictions, on any lot you choose, and you can pay for it like rent.

Home Course In Domestic Science

IX.—Attractive Table Arrangements.

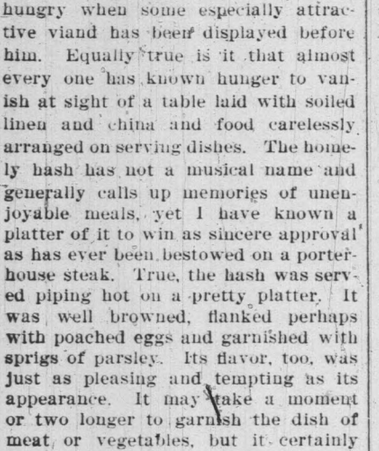
By EDITH G. CHARLTON,
In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa State College.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

NEXT in importance to the proper cooking of food is the way it is served and the order in which the table is laid. The attractive appearance of well cooked food appeals strongly to the appetite and prepares the digestive organs for their work. Probably every person has experienced the feeling of being suddenly hungry when some especially attractive viand has been displayed before him. Equally true is it that almost every one has known hunger to vanish at sight of a table laid with soiled linen and china and food carelessly arranged on serving dishes. The homely hash has not a musical name and generally calls up memories of unenjoyable meals, yet I have known a platter of it to win as sincere approval as has ever been bestowed on a porterhouse steak. True, the hash was served piping hot on a pretty platter. It was well browned, flanked perhaps with poached eggs and garnished with sprigs of parsley. Its flavor, too, was just as pleasing and tempting as its appearance. It may take a moment or two longer to garnish the dish of meat or vegetables, but it certainly pays for the trouble. Rather than neglect it I would suggest omitting one or two dishes from the menu. Referring to menus brings to mind the fact that in some homes, those in the country especially, there is a tendency to serve too many foods of the same kind at the same meal.

For instance, I have many times seen three kinds of cooked fruit, three or four kinds of vegetables and at least two kinds of pickles or desserts served at an ordinary dinner. This means unnecessary work, unnecessary expense and so much time spent in preparation that very likely there was none left for dainty serving. A knowledge of foods and food values should teach the housekeeper that one food of each of the above mentioned kinds is sufficient at one time for any family.

In many homes, too, it is the custom to put all the food on the table at once and have the various dishes passed from one person to the next without any attempt at serving. While I am at all times an advocate of simplicity, I do like to see the head of the house presiding at table, carving and serving the meat at least and his wife, at her end of the table, presiding over the coffee and serving those dishes which rightfully fall to her lot. It seems much more like true hospitality when this is done than when platters and vegetable dishes follow each other in quick succession around the table, each individual helping himself. The extra minutes which serving requires is the best thing in the world for the family, because it allows more time to masticate the food and for social conversation, that best of all sauces for the digestion.



SIMPLE BREAKFAST TABLE.

Setting the Table.

The keynote of good taste is simplicity, and nowhere is it displayed to better advantage than in laying a table for a meal, be that an everyday family affair or a formal gathering of special guests. It is not my intention to outline a set of rules for the hostess who plans to entertain on an elaborate scale. She probably will have the advice and assistance of the professional caterer. But my wish is to give a few of the important points to be observed in setting the ordinary table for the ordinary meal. And I want to preface what I shall say with the hope that all women who preside over homes or who have the training of young people in charge will see to it that no carelessness is permitted either in table manners or in the simple act of setting the table, because such things leave an indelible mark in after life. The table, which may be either round, square or oblong, as preferred, is to be first covered with a silence cloth, a pad of asbestus cloth or double faced canton flannel. The first is more expensive, but is better because of its protection to the table and because it does not become moist from hot dishes and stick to the table. Over the pad is laid the linen cloth, which should extend ten inches over the edge of the table on all sides. The fold in the center of the cloth should be exactly in the center of the table.

In arranging the places allow at least twenty inches space at the table for each person. The china, glass and silver set for each person make what is commonly known as a "cover." In placing the silver observe this order: Lay the silver on either side of the plate in the order in which it is to be used, beginning at the outside. Place the knives on the right side, handles about one inch from edge of table, sharp edge turned in. Lay all the forks, with the exception of the oyster fork, on the left hand side, tines up, handles on a line with the handles of the knives. The oyster fork is either placed on the right side outside the knives or slanting across the oyster plate, handle toward the right hand. The spoons are properly placed on the right side, the soup spoon outside the knives. The teaspoon at dinner is next the plates. For breakfast it may be outside the knife if it is to be used first. It is considered more correct for a formal dinner to have the silver brought to the table with each course after the salad has been served.

The table napkin is folded in a simple square and is placed on the left side at the lower edge of the plate. If bread and butter plates are used these are placed on the left just above the napkin. The water glass is placed on the right side at the top of the knife. A pair of salt and pepper shakers is placed conveniently between each two persons, as a rule.

It is well to have some decoration on the table, even if it be nothing more than a simple potted plant or some sprays of wild flowers. A small pot of growing parsley in winter is better than no decoration. The centerpiece should be low and flat rather than high, for the latter obstructs the view of people sitting on opposite sides of the table. Dishes of celery, olives, pickles or confectionery may be on the table from the beginning of the meal and if so should be arranged near the center around the floral decoration.

If tea or coffee is to be served on the table the cups, saucers and service should be neatly arranged in front of the hostess.

Serving the Meal.

In many homes where there is only one maid to act as cook and waitress the serving must be as simple as possible. Very often, in fact, the housekeeper must herself act as both cook and waitress, and then the serving must be even more simple. But in any case try to avoid the too common habit of putting everything on the table at once and allowing each person to help himself.

When there are boys and girls in the family they should be taught to take turns in serving. In that case or when the housekeeper is alone the first course may be placed on the table before the meal is announced. If it is soup served from a tureen the hostess serves it from her end of the table, or the soup may be served in the kitchen and put at each place before the family is seated. The soup plates and tureen are removed before bringing in the next course. The meat platter is placed at the head of the table before the host, who should carve it and, putting a portion on each plate, pass it to the person sitting at his right. This person keeps it if specially requested to do so or passes it on down the table. The potatoes and other vegetables may be served by the host if the family is small or by some person sitting near him. The dinner dishes—that is, the plates on which the meat course was served—should be removed before bringing in the salad or dessert. If both are included in the menu the salad is generally served by the hostess. It is quite permissible, however, to have the salad arranged on individual plates in the kitchen and placed on the table at the beginning of dinner. Dessert should be served by the host while the hostess pours the tea or coffee. Pudding sauce and cream and sugar are passed. Bread and butter are usually on the table throughout the meal and are passed as needed. Celery and olives are passed with the soup and pickles with the meat course. Jelly is often passed with chicken, and apple sauce should accompany roast pork.

In some households the business of serving at table without a maid has been brought to a perfection which is worthy of emulation. In order that it may be absolutely devoid of awkwardness it is necessary for each member of the family to be well schooled in his or her part. It is nowadays the fashion in some households to dispense with the services of a maid, at least during the simpler meals of the day.

When there is a waitress she is expected to take the plate from the host or hostess and place it before the person for whom it was served. She must place all dishes at the right side and pass those from which the person helps himself at the left. All plates and dishes are removed from the right side. In clearing the table after each course all dishes used in serving it must be removed as well as the individual plate and silver. After the salad and before serving the dessert all dishes, bread, butter and relishes should be removed and the crumbs brushed up on crumb tray. Water glasses should be kept filled as required without removing them from the table.

With a little practice any meal can be served simply and correctly, and in a short time it will be found that its enjoyment has been greatly increased.

In buying china or silver remember that quality is of much more consequence than ornamentation, and in either the simpler designs and colorings are preferable. Plain white china of good quality is much more satisfying in the end than elaborate designs in pronounced colors. In nothing are artistic sense and feeling more strongly shown than in the appointments of the dining table.

SECOND ARTICLE.

DON'T expect the hired girl to chin herself on a wire rope every time she hangs out the wash. Buy one of those neat but not gaudy family turnstiles, with force feed and family lubricator. Next to a bottle of some approved colic remedy this is the greatest boon that can be placed in any home. More hired girls have become shoulder bound in the attempt to wrap the handles of a pink chemise around a lofty clothesline than from any other cause.

Never allow a cow to stroke you across the upper lip with her tail during the process of milking. If you encourage this kind of familiarity do not be surprised if she thoughtlessly plants both feet in the pit of your stomach some evening and makes you cough up loose tissue for a week. The only way to inspire respect in a peevish milk cow is to jar her back teeth loose about twice a week with a section of a rail fence. We have found out that the more affection you shower upon some cows the quicker they are to start a puncture in your diaphragm.

JAR HER BACK TEETH LOOSE ABOUT TWICE A WEEK.

We have been asked why some bees sting harder than others. Personally we never could see any difference. The average male bee, so scientists tell us, has a stroke varying from one-eighth to one-quarter of an inch, depending upon the resistance encountered. A well directed sting on the surface of a live boil, for instance, is liable to cause more uneasiness on the part of the stingee than one planted on a new shirt cuff. Some bees have a rotary motion in their stinging apparatus, while others use a [illegible] bore which is about as pleasing as painless dentistry. If you are bound to be stung, choose a bee whose family relations are pleasant or go and bite off a chunk of mining stock.

A WELL DIRECTED STING ON THE SURFACE OF A LIVE BOIL.

The poultry keeper who ornaments his hennery with the Brahma rooster is stung. This bird requires only two hours' sleep per day, and he generally takes this from 7 to 9 in the morning. He usually turns his voice loose about 3 a. m., and by 6 o'clock he is so hoarse that he sounds like an expiring corn sheller. The Brahma can be heard for six miles on a still day when in good voice, and his conversation becomes extremely monotonous. He is a large, rawboned bird, with a crop capacity of four full quarts, and is the only substitute for the windmill on the farm. The Brahma makes about as delicious a dinner dish as stewed polecat.

THE BRAHMA CAN BE HEARD FOR SIX MILES.

The farmer who is too poor to buy a pair of warm blankets for his team with hogs at $10 and milk at $1.50 a hundred ought to try doing the chores in a gauze union suit and see how he likes it. The man who will allow a faithful team to stand for hours in the teeth of a bitter wind while he hugs the grocery store stove and settles the tariff question has a disposition which would make a hyena turn green with envy. We have seen men who had plenty of time in which to gabble about old Joe Cannon and the steel schedule, but who were too busy to slip a couple of blankets on a shivering team. If there is a hell the man who allows his team to freeze to the pavement on a winter's night will be called upon to do a jig at the tail of a toasting fork that will last 150,000 years.

There is a great difference in brood sows. Some sows seem to have no sense of family relationship and are just as liable to offer refreshments to a guinea hen as to a member of their own family. This usually results from nearsightedness. Provide the sow with a pair of smoked glasses and lead her family up to the booth every morning for a few days, after which no trouble will be experienced. The average sow is long on swill and short on intellect. In fact, we never knew a sow that had anything on a cream vat in point of intelligence and culture, but patience and tact will accomplish wonders.

PROVIDE THE SOW WITH A PAIR OF SMOKED GLASSES.

It is a pure waste of time to attempt to make a trotting horse out of the Clydesdale. We never saw a Clydesdale in our life that could wiggle around a half mile track in less than seventeen minutes, yet some farmers are disappointed if they can't get to town and back the same day with a team of Clydesdales weighing 4,000 pounds in their lingerie. The Clydesdale is not a society favorite and never will be. He has the same relation to the speed ring as a deflated wheelbarrow, but when it comes to jerking a manure spreader over plowed ground he is there fifty-seven ways. As a driving horse the Clydesdale is a melancholy joke.

THE CLYDESDALE HAS THE SAME RELATION TO THE SPEED RING AS A DEFLATED WHEELBARROW.

We have patented a fly net which will soon be placed upon the market. This net is made of three thicknesses of four ply cotton batten and can be had in the following colors: Venetian red, gobelin blue and budweiser yellow. This is a form fitting net and is made in three styles—to wit, the princess abdominal, the anti-fat hip reducer and the royal flush straight front. This net has the approval of the board of health and the pure food commission. This net requires no staples, strings or suspenders. It is held in place by perspiration and the force of gravity.

The best farm dog ever put out is the collie pup. A good Scotch or Canadian-Irish collie with a loud voice and firm teeth will inspire more respect in a herd of milk cows than a barnful of milk stools. In picking out a shepherd dog always select one whose mother was crossed with a hyena and which can point with his nose and set with his tail. He may not take any beauty prizes, but when he sinks his front teeth in the back porch of a stubborn steer you will have to pry him loose with a stick of dynamite. This breed of pup has better staying qualities than a straight front corset.

SINKS HIS TEETH IN THE BACK PORCH OF A STUBBORN STEER.

Never serve salt pork in a tureen ladle. The process is wasteful and may result in clogging the inlet to the esophagus. Salt pork should be reserved for company dinners, anyway. It is cheap and filling, and one pound will go further than any other breakfast food we know of. A pound jag of salt pork on a hand painted doily makes an appetizing centerpiece and is a good chaser for mock turtle consomme.

The company included Misses Helen Ingraham, Florence Ward, Ethel Chase, Lucile and Maude Moody, Dorothy Wilde; Messrs. Chapter L, P. E. O., gave a 1 o'clock luncheon and miscellaneous shower last Saturday at the home of Mrs. C. E. Russell, on Third street, complimentary to Miss Frances Hendershott, a June bride, for whom several prenuptial affairs have been given.

The decorations of the dining room were pink and green; a profusion of sweet peas, pink cardboard hearts and cupids, with festoons of plumosis from each corner of the room made it a bower of beauty. The color scheme was also carried out in the dainty little hand-painted place cards.

The four course luncheon was gracefully served by Miss Bernice Williams and Miss Una Russell.

The decorations of the living room were pink carnations and ferns and of the reception room were green and white. Many were the remembrances and best wishes given to the bride-elect, who is a popular member of Chapter L.

The invited guests of the chapter were Mrs. Frances Best and Miss Helen Best of Pasadena, Mrs. Ednah Magee and Mrs. M. A. Lorbeer of Los Angeles and Mrs. Hendershott and Mrs. R. A. Campbell of Glendale.

In Glendale distilled waters sell at forty-five cents a five gallon bottle. Mt. Verdugo Water sells at forty cents. This difference is not large, but when we know that it takes about twice as much distilled water to satisfy, the difference is striking. It is conceded by physiologists that the water that is the most satisfying is by far the healthiest—common sense will tell you the same thing. Home Phone 173.

THE RICHARDSON TRACT.

As will be noticed by the advertisement appearing in this issue, the Richardson Tract comprising 25 acres of the old Santa Eulalia ranch at Tropico is now on the market. The property lies at the junction of the San Fernando road and the S. P. railroad extending to Central avenue, the most of it being on the north side of the railroad, there being one tier of lots on the other side. Great improvements are contemplated which almost assure the building up of this subdivision in the near future. Bids for cement work including two miles of sidewalk and the same distance of curbing will be opened this week and the contract let in a few days. Three streets are to be opened through the tract at right angles with the San Fernando road and one which will parallel that thoroughfare, from 587 to 628 feet distant from it. This street will be seventy feet in width. The opening and improving of these streets will begin at once. A real estate office has been built and the dispisal of the lots will be pushed rapidly. The house formerly occupied by Mr. E. W. Richardson will be removed to a site off the tract.

WEST GLENDALE

Mrs. J. L. Russ spent Saturday with her aunt, Mrs. J. O. Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Woolfe of 2281 Ivy street expect to leave about the first of July on a trip to Yosemite valley.

"And the wedding bells sweetly will chime" in West Glendale before long. But if you want the particulars just buy a copy of the NEWS next week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stine entertained their friends, Mrs. Roy Kirkpatrick, son and daughter of Pasadena at their home las Sunday and on Sunday had as their guests Mrs. Louise Patterson and Miss Ethel Andrews.

A splendid program has been prepared for Children's Day at the Mission church, Fifth and Pacific streets, to which every one is cordially invited. The exercises will take place on the morning of Sunday, June 12.

Mr. C. Frank Smith has as his guests his brother and family from Kansas. Mr. Smith is a railroad man and intends making his home here. They are spending a few days at the beach, and intend seeing the sights before settling down.

Mr. Ball, who was so severely injured in Los Angeles two weeks ago, is reported as doing nicely, although still confined to the Sisters' Hospital. He would appreciate a call from friends, and if not able to visit him personally drop him a card to remind him that his Glendale friends have not forgotten him.

Mr. Lucies Gervais of Imperial is here for the summer on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gervais of Ivy street. He is a professional baseball player of considerable note, and has already received at least a half dozen offers to play since coming here, but would rather rest up before entering any league.

Mrs. Jessie Stine gave a birthday party last Friday evening in honor of her nephew, Elmer Francis, who celebrated his 13th year. A merry time was enjoyed by all. The rooms were beautifully decorated. A sumptuous repast was served of which a huge birthday cake with the proverbial candles was one of the many goodies set before the guests.

Don't think that the small boy is celebrating the glorious Fourth a little prematurely from the loud detonations heard in West Glendale lately. It is only the blasting out of the old reservoir on Remington avenue preparatory to the grading of the street from West Glendale school to Fourth street. Improvements are certainly not on the decrease.

What do the citizens of Glendale, especially this part of town, want now? They are using the gas that has been promised them so long, and what next, is the question, unless it would be the electric road to Burbank that has been promised and talked of for such a long time. It certainly would be a benefit to the entire valley and add to the value of property along the line.

It looked as though all the autos in the country were out around Glendale on Sunday, but among the chauffeurs there wasn't a finer looking one and one who handled the lines more gracefully than Mr. E. W. Pack, who with a party was seen spinning around West Glendale during the afternoon. Perhaps ti was the ladies who helped make the fine showing, anyawy, will give them the benefit of the doubt.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE WEST GLENDALE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

Exercises that will long be remembered by every one were held at the school on Thursday last. An exhibit of representative school work was shown in one room, in which everybody took a vast amount of interest. A prize was given for the best made basket done by Fifth and Sixth grades, with Mark Keppel as judge. Carlton Padelford received first prize; Clarence Ball, second. Mr. Keppel gave a splendid address, aiming at showing those addressed the meaning of a greater patriotism than is usually accepted—that is, living to be a betterment to one's country. He brought forth the achievements of peace rather than war.

Punch was served during the afternoon with ice cream and cake at the close. Following is the splendid program. The entire Eighth grade passed with high honors. Diplomas will be presented by Mr. Warren Story on Friday afternoon.

Selection, "Le Voyage," gallop, Mandolin club; "Song of the Gondolier," school; "Story of the Lady of the Lake," James Gibson; "A Song of Spring," Chaminade, Viola Yorba; class prophecy, Harry Boehme; selection, "Waltz," Mandolin club; recitation, Chas. Decker; song, "Happy Miller," school; "Class Will," Willie Cathcart; song, "The Garden of Roses," Viola Yorba; address, "The New Patriotism," Supt. Mark Keppel; selection, "Shepherds' Evening Song," Mandolin club.

IT IS WONDERFUL HOW MUCH SATISFACTION CAN BE OBTAINED FROM A TALK OVER THE BELL TELEPHONE

A letter carries words, but the Bell Service has been brought up to such a point of perfection that the modulations of the voice are clearly heard.

The cheery tones show that the talker is well and in good spirits. The call may come from a suburban village or a distant city, but within the limits of the carrying power of the voice the Bell Service carries the tone as well. You get a personal interview with a friend hundreds of miles away.
